SPIRIT NEEDED, LEADERS ALSO DR. MCINTYRE

Editor, The Era: Permit me to express my views on two very important subjects discussed in your editorial last week. The first was the place of the Holy Spirit in the church and the second was the need for leaders. They are both leading questions and I am very glad that you have brought them up for consideration.

The first is the clergyman's statement that "the need of the church is to be filled with the spirit of God." I agree with the clergyman. The spiritual is the motive power of all history. The modern church dates from Pentecost when "they were all filled with the spirit of God." This meant that they were fitted for the work that lay before them. The spirit has many functions and all applicable to the efficiency of the individual.

John says, "It is the spirit that quickeneth." It starts life in a lifeless body. A layman is lifeless until the spirit does his work. The same apostle says: "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." A layman is actionless so far as the highest good is concerned until he gets a good nature.

It is the spirit that enlightens the re-born man. There is no such thing as original "light upon this earth." It is all reflected light. David understood this when he wrote: "In Thy light shall we see light." A layman is in darkness without this light. It is the spirit that gives power. The disciples waited at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high.

Under this power Peter converted 3,000 souls by one sermon. It is the spirit that instructs. "He," Christ said, "will teach you all things." A layman untaught by the spirit is ignorant of heavenly things. It is the spirit that guides. Without such guidance it is only another example of the blind leading the blind. In view of the many functions of the spirit you will see at a glance why I think the Holy Spirit is the great need of the church today. Civilization begins at Calvary, not at Athens.

In the second place I agree with you that the church needs consecrated leadership. Such leadership is a rare commodity today. But I do not agree with you that the church needs leadership directed "to specific every day things." It would accomplish the end in view. Much of the world's leadership has been directed to specific things more or less for 6,000 years to no avail. Great Britain is giving consecrated leadership in Europe today but it is not accepted. Why is it not accepted? Because the dictatorship powers cannot accept it. It is against their nature. The fish cannot accept the leadership of the bird. The bird and the fish live in two separate worlds.

In the same way the consecrated man and the non-consecrated man live in two separate realms. The spirit of God is the only power that can bridge the gulf between them. Consecrated leadership must have consecrated followers, if ever the wrongs of humanity are to be righted. The "specific everyday things of the world" will ever worry us as they did Deborah in the days of the down-trodden Israel until followers dedicate themselves to right the ills of humanity. Then shall be sung Deborah's song of triumph according to the R. V. For that the leaders took the lead in Israel and the people followed willingly, "Praise ye the Lord." The final success and victory was God's triumph, not man's.

The grave danger of the world today lies in the fact that non-consecrated leaders and followers seem to have the right-of-way. The real struggle is between the material and the spiritual. I see no hope for wars or rumors of wars so long as such conditions exist. If the spirit of God does not remake the material into the spiritual, our disorders will still go on. The challenge of the hour, to the consecrated leader, is not the specific everyday things, but men. It is not reformation of the world needs but regeneration. When that day comes, our social, political, economic, national and international ills will fade away as the darkness before the light.

Signed
Pastor, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

A. A. MACKENZIE SPEAKS

Optimism and enthusiasm went hand in hand when local Conservatives got together here on Tuesday evening. J. E. Nesbitt was chairman.

Injury is being done to the morals of the young people by the beer rooms, Mrs. Frank Hope, president of the Newmarket Ladies' Conservative Association, stated.

F. A. Landy and J. O. Little, former county commissioner and warden respectively, made short addresses.

"It was only the tearing up of a scrap of paper that started the world war," said Major A. A. Mackenzie, the Conservative candidate, in criticizing repudiation of the Hydro.

"This action has damaged Ontario's credit and has belittled us in the eyes of the world," said Major Mackenzie. "This government has paid no attention to the market problems and the meagre returns of the farmer."

"Working-men are drinking more than they can afford to," was one of the statements made by Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd, urging that the "liquor traffic be cleaned up and put on a business-like basis."

"Morgan Baker signed a round robin asking Hepburn not to put through the separate school legislation and then fell in line like a good boy and voted for it," said Clifford Case, Aurora, former legislature member. "A year later he and Hepburn swallowed their own legislation."

"Hepburn has cut down the car license fees by $5. I saw a couple tonight and that's all their worth."

Mrs. C. F. Willis, Newmarket, was third with two wins and 44. With Mrs. Willis were Mrs. M. H. Goslett, Mrs. James Thompson and Mrs. Alex. Eves. Mrs. Harris, Toronto, was fourth with one win and 41 plus one.

TRANS-CANADA ROAD GOES VIA U. S., SO WHAT?

Ronald H. Perry, member of the staff of Pickering College, told the story of his coast-to-coast trip during the past summer for the Canadian Radio Commission at a Lions club meeting on Monday evening.

"The first broadcast was at Halifax. We decided to take the ferry across the Bay of Fundy and we arrived at Digby with $1.17 in our pockets."

"The first broadcast was an experience I'll never forget. I came as near then to turning tail on anything as ever I did in my life. When I got through I was dripping wet."

"We travelled 14,000 miles and spent 65 nights in strange beds. Two things struck us. One was the importance of railroads, particularly in the west. Canada roads on the whole are pretty awful. The feeling, when we got to the Soo, that the trans-Canada highway went through the United States, baffled us."

"I noticed five out of seven cars in Edmonton had cracked windshields. It was the pebbles on the Edmonton-Calgary highway. When we were almost to Calgary a pebble flew up and took a nick out of our own windshield."

"Sixty per cent of the people of Saskatchewan are on relief. They keep their sense of humor. One story is of a man who was knocked out when struck on the head by a drop of water. It took 20 nails of dust to revive him."

"We came to the conclusion that Ontario is greatly industrialized because of its geographical position."

ENJOY ANNUAL ROAST AT BEN HOWARD'S FARM

Last Friday evening 60 young people enjoyed the annual weiner roast at Ben Howard's farm. For well over 15 years, Mr. Howard has played host to the young people of the Christian church in his usual jovial manner.

Last Monday evening 25 young people went to Toronto to attend the monster rally of the Toronto Union of Christian Endeavour Societies, held in Centennial United church. Harry Skitch, choir leader of Carlton St. United church, led the group in a lively sing-song and Dr. W. A. McTaggart, minister of St. Columbus United church was guest speaker, choosing as his theme "We Choose Christ." Similar rallies were held on Monday in London, Sarnia, Hamilton and Kitchener in preparation for the provincial C.E. convention to be held in Hamilton Thanksgiving week-end.

Something Basically Wrong With Society, Trinity Told

Truth Of Christ Remains
Forsaken, Visiting
Minister States

"Society today is seething with unrest," said Rev. Dr. Geo. E. Mercer, visiting minister, at Trinity United church on Sunday morning. Dr. Mercer spoke on "things that are unshaken."

"Old ideas are being abandoned," he said. "Everywhere there is doubt and scepticism. Everywhere there is a search for a firm foundation on which to build."

"We cannot help but see something basically wrong with our social and economic structure. We have not been putting the materials into the building. We have failed to put first things first."

"Individual standards are wrong. The greatest need of the world today is homes in which God is loved, the Bible read and Christ honored. The church, in at least Protestant circles, is ineffective because we are divided. The new wine can never find its full expression through divided Protestantism. Co-operation is needed."

"Business and industry have been rudely shaken. No danger has been so great as too much power in the hands of people who do not know how to control it. Some regard wealth as power. Wealth is not the true standard by which to judge a man. People are rolling to their doom when wealth and self-indulgence become the ideal. Instead of building our house on God's truth, we built our house on sand and the house fell."

"There are permanent things that remain. Christ remains. His truth never dies. The religion of Jesus is indispensable even in this modern age.

"Then the sovereignty of God remains unshakable. Is it not true today that with many people it is their business first, their family second, their God last? Christ is the only answer to the needs of the world. You cannot get away from him. His words are as new, and arresting and as fresh today as when they were uttered."

"One other thing remains unshakable. That is the kingdom of God."

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS

As an argument for consolidated rural schools instead of the little red school-houses that now dot the countryside, a writer in the Amherstburg Echo quotes one teacher as saying to another: "You can understand how difficult it is to arouse any competitive spirit in a class of only two or three pupils." An Ontario teacher who thinks along slightly different lines, however, is S. B. McCready. In a booklet, "Rural Reconstruction: Education For Co-operation," he is highly critical of competitive displays at the school fairs and at the Royal Winter Fair. He believes that rural people particularly should learn co-operation rather than competition. He believes that an equivalent of the Danish folk high school would be practical in Ontario, and so we may assume that he would also believe in consolidated schools for younger pupils. His articles are based on a study of co-operation in the Scandinavian countries, Great Britain and Nova Scotia.

More Efficiency

Ontario has not yet accepted the idea of consolidated schools. Changes come slowly, particularly when they involve the construction of new buildings. In favor of the consolidated schools it is said that naturally, with more teachers and more equipment, they are more efficient. Against them it may be said that "efficiency" would possibly involve the teachers doing more for the pupils rather than the pupils doing more for themselves. Education is said to be what you teach yourself, and in the rural schools children are thrown upon their own resources to a greater extent than in town schools. Incidentally, changes in the public school course of study this year are designed principally to make the child do more for himself. However, there is a difference between leading the child to do for himself and neglect, which may often occur of necessity in over-crowded one-room country schools.

Pro and Con

Arguments for and against the consolidated school are familiar. The consolidated school teacher may specialize in the work of one or two classes and in the training of children of a particular age group. The rural school teacher never becomes "stale" on her work because she has such a large field to cover. The consolidated school teacher would probably have the advantage of living in a village. The rural school teacher would have the advantage of living at a farm home and being ever conscious of what the needs of her pupils will be in their future lives. There is something to be said for the little red schoolhouse, and as soon as consolidated schools are mentioned someone is going to say it. There is an alternative route which we might take with the same destination in mind, namely, better education, and that is to give the rural school teacher better training and a better salary. How much better equipped rural teachers would be if they might have the advantage of such travels abroad as Mr. McCready has enjoyed.

THE ELECTION

Weekly newspapers have their last opportunity this week to offer any help to their readers in casting their votes. There have been few political meetings to report. Apparently candidates are unwilling to test their drawing power against the drawing power of party leaders speaking over the radio. In the neighboring county of Peel the minister of agriculture a week or two ago turned up for a scheduled meeting, only to find the hall empty. Incidentally, the radio, enabling the hard-and-fast party man, who would not allow himself to be seen at a meeting held by the other party, to hear both sides of the question, must be doing much to break down party prejudice.

Newspaper Independence

Most weeklies, including this one, hope to be regarded as independent. In order to be so regarded many weeklies have nothing to say on politics in their editorial columns. Quite a few, however, do express opinions and naturally they bring upon themselves criticism from both and all sides of the fence. The Era, which would not want to ignore on this page so important a subject as the administration of the province's affairs, affecting all our lives in dozens of ways, is frequently reproved for leaning too far to one side and at the same time for leaning too far to the other side. We don't lean deliberately, just incidentally, as we try to hear all sides of the question and then to express honest opinions of our own.

Hepburn Or No

The issue, in an election, as we see it, is whether or not the public want the present administration returned to power, rather than do they or do they not want some new group to take office. We have certain servants employed and if they are making a reasonably good job of the administration of our affairs we will be disposed to continue them in our service. If we are dissatisfied we will turn them out, always provided that there is another group to whom we may turn with confidence.

Interest Rates

Let us first look then at our present employees, Messrs. Hepburn & Co., and review their record. Certain acts, of which some of us will approve and some of us disapprove, stand out. In the first place, if we cast our memories back to the early days of the Hepburn administration, or if we listen to one of Mr. Hepburn's campaign speeches, we will remember that he forced the chartered banks to pay higher prices for the province's bonds than they were at first ready to pay. His action took considerable courage and we are asked to believe that the resultant lowering of interest rates is the floor on which the present prosperity is being built. This is a very difficult contention for any of us to pass on, but we should ask whether there has been any appreciable lowering of interest rates to private business other than the dominion-wide lowering of interest rates brought about by the Bennett government. We should also remember that the present prosperity is not confined to Ontario nor to Canada, and that it may be partly attributed to the slaughter of humanity in Ethiopia, Spain and the Orient and the mad preparation for other conflicts. We may also bear in mind that we shall probably be asked in another couple of years to believe that the present prosperity is due, as we believe it partly is, to the foreign trade policies of the King government, with its somewhat lower tariffs in return for like concessions from other countries. But, whatever we think, we must credit the Hepburn government with definite interest savings to the provincial treasury.

Hydro Contracts

In the second place, nobody disputes that Mr. Hepburn cancelled power contracts made by the previous government with certain Quebec power companies. He has now remade some of these contracts on terms more favorable to the province, although we cannot give the facts concerning the new contracts. Nobody disputes that the cancelling of the contracts has meant considerable economies to power users, although not in Newmarket, because of a long-term fixed rate contract, but particularly in rural areas. It is said against the cancelling of the contracts that it was dishonest and, second, that it damaged the credit of the province. The reply is made that the contracts were secretly made to the disadvantage of Ontario and that they were therefore void from the outset. As for impairing the credit of the province, the Hepburn government was able to show a surplus of revenues over expenditures during the last fiscal year.

School Question

Then there was the legislation designed to give separate schools a fair share of the corporation tax. This legislation Mr. Hepburn repealed as it did not have the desired result and as it drew widespread criticism. On this question one can believe Mr. Hepburn was right and blame his opponents for raising a religious cry, or one can believe that separate schools are not entitled to an even break with public schools, or one can cynically reach the conclusion that only a Conservative government can do justice to the separate schools and avoid criticism. Mr. Rowe promises that he would be fair to the separate schools.

Taxing the Rich

The Hepburn government instituted a province-wide income tax in the place of the old municipal income tax, which most municipalities, including Newmarket, were collecting either not at all or in a feeble way. Mr. Hepburn has also carried on a vigorous campaign for the collection of succession duties of which he charges the province had been defrauded. The money raised in these ways has been partly used to pay the municipalities' share of mothers' allowances and old-age pensions, to wipe out the amusement tax, to extend mothers' allowances to widows with one child, to reduce car license fees substantially and to pay to the municipalities one mill on their assessment. Needless to say, some people would rather do without these benefits and not have the income tax or the succession duties campaign. They have as much right to look out for their monetary interests as have the people benefitted by these policies.

Northern Ontario

In northern Ontario the Hepburn government has put a great many people to work by recovering from "speculators" crown timber lands and re-leasing these lands to people who would build pulp mills and guarantee continuous employment.

Liquor Misery

The Hepburn government has operated the beer parlors with revenue rather than "liquor control" as the principal object. Licenses have been cancelled, it is true, but only when conditions were such that public opinion forced or would shortly force such action. Only the desire to increase liquor revenues can explain the liquor policy of the Hepburn Government. There is no way to measure the human misery that has resulted from the increased rate of alcoholic liquors during the last three years.

C.I.O. Issue

The Hepburn government promises to do all in its power to hamper and hinder the C.I.O., originating in the United States, and aiming to strengthen labor through the organization of entire industries in single unions instead of inter-industry craft unions. The new industrial unions, of course, include unskilled laborers. Mr. Hepburn sees in this form of industrial organization a threat to the established order and, indeed, to the capitalist system. Mr. Rowe has no objection to industrial unions provided there is no such law-breaking as taking possession of plants.

Alternative

That seems to us substantially the record of the Hepburn government. No one has questioned the honesty of members of the government or suggested any scandal. If one does not wish the Hepburn government to continue in office, the alternative is a government headed by Mr. Rowe, a substantial farmer, who would probably carry on the government of the province in a satisfactory way.

Mr. Rowe's Beer Pledge

In any event, whether he ever gets the opportunity or not, it must stand to Mr. Rowe's credit that he has promised to "clean up or close up" the beverage rooms. The meaning of that promise is not clear but it shows at least some concern for public opinion about the increasing intemperance throughout the province.

And the C.C.F.

While there is no alternative to a Hepburn government or a Rowe government, in many ridings there will be an alternative to a Hepburn vote or a Rowe vote and that will be a C.C.F. vote. Many people who do not care greatly which of the older parties is successful will cast a vote for the C.C.F. program of co-operation, public ownership, production for use rather than profit, state medicine, and other changes, a program not nearly so radical as, but perhaps further from fulfillment than, was the responsible government program of the Reformers of a century ago.

The Acton Free Press, following a visit by its editor to Halifax, states that "it is quite apparent that the movement to improve old cemeteries did not originate in the east and spread to this section of the dominion." The Free Press is right in both statements. The movement did not start in the east and it did not spread to this section of the dominion.

To Save Ontario Motorists Time and Money

1938 Motor Vehicle Permits Are Now Available

DUE to the advance in the new car purchasing season and the fact that increasingly large numbers of used cars and trucks are now purchased at this time of year and following the practice established last year which met with such favourable reception on the part of the motoring public, 1938 Motor Vehicle Permits and Operators' Licenses are being made available in advance of the date of expiration of 1937 permits.

1938 Permits (now available) save the purchaser of a new car or truck the expense of 1937 registration.

They save the purchaser of a used car or truck the fee for transferring the 1937 registration (1938 Permit can be procured without transfer fee).

As indicated in the Budget Address delivered on March 9th of this year, the Government is able to announce a downward revision in the fees for the registration of Motor Vehicles.

PASSENGER CAR REGISTRATION FEES	1937 Fee	1938 Fee

All Commercial Motor Vehicles and Trailers have been reduced 25% from the 1937 rate.

The Fee for the registration of a change of ownership has been reduced from $2.00 to $1.00.

Fee for the Registration of a Motor Cycle has been reduced from $3.00 to $1.00.

CHANGE OF LICENSE YEAR

The Government having decided to change the license year to coincide with its fiscal year, 1938 permits and licenses will be valid to March 31st, 1939.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Era: The real issues of this election seem to be very distorted. We have the leaders of the old parties making and denying charges, whether Mr. Brown or Mr. Green was offered certain positions on the Liquor Control Board or what Mr. Jones did some time last year.

These very interesting discussions make good reading and no doubt keep the boys pepped up. I should imagine, however, that the majority of the electors, with another winter coming and living costs mounting, would be more interested in other important matters. For example,

1. Why did Mr. Hepburn call an election costing the taxpayers millions of dollars two years before he needed to?
2. Will the workers of Ontario receive higher wages this winter?

to offset the higher costs of living?

3. What action has been taken to guarantee the farmer a decent price for his potatoes?
4. Is the total provincial debt $80,000,000 higher than when the Hepburn government took office?
5. Aside from the world-wide improvement in business, what has the Hepburn government done to alleviate unemployment?
6. Assuming that the Hepburn government for its first short period in office carried out its pledge to "swing to the left," is not the fact that big business is now supporting the Hepburn government a warning to the farmers and workers that this government is no longer working for them? No man can serve two masters.
7. Are the liquor interests supporting the Hepburn government?
8. What will be done concerning state medicine by either old party if returned to power?
9. Would the farmer be allowed to organize for higher prices or would a Hepburn government take sides with big business on this issue as in the Oshawa strike?

10. What will be done to assure young people of ability, but with inadequate means, of a fair opportunity for university education?

Thanking you for this space,
Yours sincerely,
Kenneth Ross

POLICE COURT WASN'T PAID FOR 18 PIGS

Charged with the theft of furs two years ago, from the home of H. P. Gilman, Newmarket, Charles Laufmann, London, Ont., was remanded in custody for one week as the result of the forced absence of Sergeant Sidney Barraclough, in police court on Tuesday morning.

Magistrate Ross Hossack reserved his decision on a reckless driving charge against Edgar B. Eddy, Toronto.

E. A. Richardson, Toronto barrister, acting for Mr. Eddy, called

Albert Campbell as an expert witness to present a plan he had made of the Whitchurch road where the accident occurred on Sept. 4.

"In what direction would a car go after being struck a blow that would do that damage?" defence counsel asked Mr. Campbell.

"I object," said N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown counsel. "No man could tell that by looking at a wheel a couple of weeks after an accident. The direction would depend on a number of factors, such as the driver's grip on the wheel and the way he turned after his impact."

"His evidence may not be worth very much, but we will hear it for what it is worth," said the magistrate.

Mr. Campbell said that the car might travel to the right at the time of impact and would turn sharply to the left within five feet.

A charge of reckless driving against Gray Coach Lines was dismissed. The driver of the bus was Norman B. Pritchard.

Arthur Holly, Holland Landing, said that he was driving a truck north on Yonge St. just inside the

(Advertisement) USED TO WAKE UP WITH A HEADACHE

Now Fresh and Lively Every Morning

Here is a man who woke up every morning with a dull headache. Then Kruschen transformed his days. Read his letter:—

"I used to wake up in the mornings with a dull headache. A year ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts regularly. To-day, I wake up fresh and lively and can do my day's work without any exertion. I can recommend Kruschen for anyone suffering from headaches and constipation, and for putting new life into you. I intend to continue with Kruschen for the rest of my life."—E. P.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them from coming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings quick and lasting relief from headaches.

south limits of Aurora.

"The bus passed me and in three or four car-lengths, the bus stopped without warning, and I hit the bus and the fender of another car," said Mr. Holly.

"It was a three-lane highway," asked Mr. Young for the Gray Coach Lines.

"Yes."

"Then there was room for you to pass."

"No, I had to swing out."

"Did you tell the bus driver that you had a heavy load on and that your brakes wouldn't work?"

"I said that I couldn't get them on in time."

"How many years have you been driving?"

"Nineteen or 20 and this is my first accident."

"The truck went 95 feet after the impact," said Constable Audrey Fleury of Aurora. "The brakes were broken by the impact."

"The bus driver told me that another truck had struck his bus just before the accident and that he had stopped, but the truck went on."

Mr. Young said that he would not put in a defence.

"I think some explanation should be given why the bus driver passed the truck and then stopped," said Mr. Mathews.

"I don't think there is sufficient evidence of reckless driving," said the magistrate.

On a charge of false pretences, David Lackey of Agincourt, was remanded for judgment for two weeks.

"On June 17 Mr. Lackey came to me and I sold him 18 pigs for $80," said C. Moynihan, Whitchurch farmer. "He gave me a cheque. His bank said there was no money. He has been promising me ever since."

"That same night with his bad cheque in my pocket I bought ten pigs from him and paid him cash."

"I bought these pigs and I bought $1,000 more pigs, and I haven't been paid for them," said Mr. Lackey. "I have been chasing the party ever since. I gave out $800 more cheques the same day, that were paid."

He said that he would pay for the pigs at the end of the week.

Charged with theft of a car, Mrs. Florence Charles, Island Grove, said that the car was in extremely poor condition and that she had written the Toronto company from whom she purchased it to come and get it.

"The company didn't come until a month after she had left the car with Mr. Sedore, a Newmarket wrecker, she said. It was stated that Mr. Sedore had sold the car to J. E. Nesbitt, car dealer."

"If you didn't want the car, didn't you return it?" asked the magistrate.

"It wasn't a case of not wanting it," was the answer. "I cost us four or $5 every time we took it out. I left us stranded one night several times. When we got to Newmarket, it wouldn't go any farther. So we took it to the wreckers."

"But you sold it for $25."

"Not really. The car we took was priced at $100. So the wrecker changed the price to $125, and we paid $100. We thought the wrecker's the best place for the car."

Mrs. Charles said she didn't tell Mr. Sedore that the car was not paid for. When the company found that she no longer had the car, they told her it was worth $20 to them to sell to the wreckers.

Leonard Tait was fined $10 and costs for travelling at 80 to 85 miles an hour at Pefferlaw. Constable J. A. Shadwick laid the charge.

"The road was clear," said the constable. "There was a car coming out a side-road."

Vote for Unemployment Insurance

Premier Hepburn will pass an Unemployment Insurance Law next session if the Liberals are returned. A vote for a Liberal candidate is a vote for Unemployment Insurance. X

Vote for Low Hydro Rates

Hepburn brought down Hydro Rates, saving consumers $4,800,000. Vote to keep Hydro from being loaded up with costly power from the Quebec Power Barons. X

Vote for the "Treasure Hunt" to Continue

Hepburn has already uncovered a treasure of 28 millions hidden away in inheritance taxes on under-valued estates. Vote to continue the hunt. X

Vote Your Approval of Lower Auto Fees

Hepburn has cut $5 off the cost of motor license fees. Vote Liberal and show your approval. X

Vote for Lower Taxes

Hepburn's desire to help the taxpayer was shown by the one-mill special subsidy he made to municipalities to be passed on to the taxpayer. Hepburn is the taxpayer's Proven Friend. X

Vote for Debt Reduction

Hepburn, by sound financing and good government, reduced Ontario's Public Debt by 33 million dollars last year. Vote for further reductions. X

Vote for Courageous Administration

Hepburn has not been afraid to stand up against the Lewis crowd, the Quebec Power Barons, the financial ring. Ontario needs a courageous Premier in times like these. Vote for lower interest rates. X

Vote for More "Sunshine" Budgets

Hepburn's last budget, with its nine-million surplus and its tax reduction accomplishments, has become popularly known as the "Sunshine" Budget. Vote for a continuation of these "Sunshine" Budgets. X

Vote Liberal And Keep The Old Henry Gang Out

IT'S all right to let Earl Rowe kid himself that he is steering and running the Conservatives, but the electors don't want to let Mr. Rowe kid them into believing that he is leading a new, clean, thoroughly purged Conservative party. The same "old Henry gang" is managing the Rowe boat. The "old Henry gang" think that they were beaten by "some mistake" in 1934. On Wednesday, October 6th, show them that it was no mistake, but that you were in deadly earnest when you voted them out and that you want them even less today.

Hepburn's Social Legislation Proves He Is "a Man With a Heart"

BY his deeds, Mr. Hepburn has shown he has the interests of the masses at heart. His government has assumed the full cost of Mothers' Allowances. A mother with one child is now entitled to an allowance, a right denied her by the former Conservative government.

Under Mr. Hepburn, the government assumed the municipalities' share of Old Age Pensions.

It established Pensions for the Blind.

It abolished Students' Examination Fees.

It cancelled the Amusement Tax so that people are no longer penalized for enjoying themselves at theatres, concerts and games.

Hepburn Benefits Labour

HEPBURN has shown true friendship for the workingman, with advanced labour legislation—Minimum wages for men as well as women, an Industrial Standards Act providing codes by agreement between employees and employers and already improving conditions for 75,000 workers;

and the creation of the Industry and Labour Board.

Another evidence of Mr. Hepburn's friendship for labour is his promise, if re-elected, to enact legislation to provide Unemployment Insurance, and Mr. Hepburn makes good on his promises.

Hepburn Takes Liquor Out of Politics

HEPBURN's proposed Board of Three—a Judge, a Liberal, a Conservative—is the sanest, soundest, most constructive plan for removing liquor from politics that has yet been devised.

In respect to beverage rooms the Hepburn Government stands for the principle of local option. It is up to the municipality to decide for itself whether it wishes to be "wet" or "dry". That's British fair play.

Hepburn prevented the sale of liquor in restaurants.

On its record of successful administration during its first term in office, the Hepburn Government deserves to be returned to power—deserves the support and the vote of all fair-minded people.

Do your part to assure Ontario a continuance of good government for another term by voting for the Hepburn candidate in your riding.

BRIDE CARRIES WHITE HEATHER

One of the loveliest weddings of the season was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican church, Newmarket, on Saturday evening, when Isobel Jean Louise, daughter of Mrs. Clark and the late Dr. Charles Clark, and Richard Grant, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. K. Dillane, "The Elms", Schomberg, were united in marriage.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with quantities of autumn flowers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Arthur J. Patstone, rector of St. Paul's, assisted by the Rev. F. V. Abbott of Schomberg.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. J. O. Little, and as they moved slowly up the aisle, the choir sang softly "The voice that breathed o'er Eden."

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. J. D. Roderick of Penetanguishene, wore an exquisite gown of ivory satin, made on princess lines, with long train and fingertip length veil, falling from a head-dress of pearly net, outlined in orange blossoms. Her bouquet was Johanna Hill roses, lilies of the valley and white heather, specially brought from Scotland.

The bride was attended by Miss Gretchen Harvey of Lakefield, as maid of honor, wearing a period gown of Rosalie taffeta with Watteau hat of the same material, and by Miss Lorna Dillane, sister of the groom,

Slaght States Rowe Is Threat To Mining

Says Parry Sound Lads
Taught To Falsify
Appraise

C.I.O. DANGER STRESSED

"The same old crowd, lifting their heads for another trial," were the words used by A. G. Slaght, K.C., in describing the Ontario Conservative party to a large crowd in Mechanics' hall on Tuesday night.

"Earl Rowe is merely a new front man," he said. "Rowe swallowed the Abitibi scandal and campaigned for George S. Henry in the last election. But two strong Conservative journals have refused to swallow."

Defending Premier Hepburn's action in the Oshawa strike, Mr. Slaght stated, "Col. Geo. Drew has said that the threat of communism is real. The C. I. O. is led largely by communists. This is a time for leadership and not for wishy-washy wobble."

Denton Massey was characterized by Mr. Slaght as "Earl Rowe's man Friday."

"There is nothing personal in my criticism of Denton Massey," he stated. He said that Mr. Massey had taught a group of boys in a Parry Sound audience to cheer when he gave them the signal at a political meeting.

"When I say, 'You can trust Rowe,' break into loud applause," the Parry Sound paper had quoted Mr. Massey as instructing the boys.

"In my district of Parry Sound,

DENTON MASSEY WILL ADDRESS CONSERVATIVES

Denton Massey and L. E. Blackwell of Toronto will appear on behalf of the Conservative candidate, Major A. A. McKenzie, M.C., on Saturday night in Mechanics' hall. Dr. C. R. Boulding, Mrs. Loughheed and Clifford Case will also speak.

he dared to teach my boys to falsify," Mr. Slaght declared. "He probably has a false Bible class," someone in the audience shouted.

"No, I'd not say that," Mr. Slaght replied. "Mr. Massey has done a lot of good work. But I think Massey ought to write an apology to every father of those boys. He will not dare to do it again."

"All interested in mining ought to vote against Rowe," he said. "His leadership would be a calamity. The C. I. O. is largely political and is led largely by communists. If Rowe became premier there would probably be an influx of communists within a week of the election. Mining stocks would drop 33 per cent in 30 days."

"Tell the people of North York that I need Baker with me during the next four years at Queen's Park," he quoted Premier Hepburn as saying.

"There is practically no unemployment in North York," Morgan Baker, the Liberal candidate, stated.

"On two occasions I have been in villages when the cars from the east were unloaded. People came in buggies and in autos drawn by horses."

"I don't think there has been anything before that has fostered a better feeling of understanding between east and west. There is a completely changed attitude. This means much in our national and religious life," the minister concluded. "I don't think the newspapers have published one-hundredth of the facts concerning existing conditions."

C. C. F. Candidate Lost Job, Woodsworth Says

Ross Sees No Connection Between Present Grits
And Old Party

NO PROSPERITY SEEN

"They had a right to be Liberals in those days," Kenneth Ross, C.C.F. candidate in North York, told a meeting in Mechanics' hall on Monday night. He was referring to the days of William Lyon Mackenzie, when his grandparents, he said, had been Liberals.

"I had expected the Liberal candidate would resign from the Liberal party because it has no connection with the old Liberal principles," he said.

"The Mulock machine is behind the Baker machine and it must win this time or the Mulock machine will be beaten the next time," Mr. Ross declared. In his criticism of the present government, he asked, "Why send a man to this parliament when he is not asked for advice? How many times was Baker asked for advice?"

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, spoke on behalf of the candidate and also criticized what he termed as the dictatorial methods of Premier M. F. Hepburn.

Hitler had dismissed his parliament for a four-year period, he stated, and Hepburn seemed to state much the same attitude.

Speaking of the case of a Fort Erie candidate who had been dismissed for his C.C.F. activities, Mr. Woodsworth stated that he had been informed the firm's New York office was primarily responsible.

"Talk about 'foreign agitators,'" he said, "here is a case of 'foreign dictatorship'."

The C.C.F. leader told of how his party had been able to swing

LECTURE BY VANFELT

Dairymen in the district gathered at Cousin's farm on Tuesday to hear and see the lecture and demonstration given by D. H. VanPelt, a specialist in dairy and field work.

Mr. VanPelt showed how to make the most profitable use of home feeds, how to prevent quarters from going bad, how to correct the hard milker, and dealt with many other problems of the milk producers.

the balance of power in the dominion house, to get approval of an old-age pension plan. He stressed the need for co-operation between the farmer and the laborer. Each was dependent on the economic well-being of the other, he said.

At the close of Mr. Woodsworth's address, the meeting was thrown open for questions.

"What would you do about the liquor question?" Mr. Woodsworth was asked. He stated that he believed a referendum would be advisable.

"What has the candidate got to say?" another asked.

"I would eliminate the profit from brewing and distilling by having it under state control," Mr. Ross said. "There would be no advertising." He pointed out that he believed the economic question was the main one.

"Are we now in a period of prosperity?" was another question directed at Mr. Woodsworth.

"That is what the newspapers say," he replied. "But I can't see that wages are up much. What prosperity there is is partly due to the re-arming of Europe. We don't want that. Surely we learned some lessons from the last war."

Children's Story Hour Begins At Public Library This Week

Eighty Volumes Of Adult
Fiction Are Added
To Shelves

The "Story Hour," which has made the public library a popular rendezvous for children on Saturday mornings, will meet for the first time this season at 10.50 on Saturday morning.

The public school curriculum of this year calls for supplementary reading for each child of "at least 20 books" for children in grade two and upwards.

The "Story Hour" is held, not only to provide supervised recreation for the children, but enables parents to be sure that their children are getting in the necessary supplementary reading for their school work.

Pottageville

Mr. David Faggan, assistant superintendent, took charge of the missionary service held in the United church on Sunday, with Mr. Bowman taking charge of the Bible class.

It is not yet decided whether the worship service for Sunday will be held at the Pottageville Baptist church or the Kettleby United church.

Anniversary service will be held in the United church on Oct. 10, with morning and evening services. All are welcome.

Many of the young men around here invaded Aurora on Wednesday evening to see the Tommy Farr vs. Joe Louis fight pictures.

Mr. D. Emmerson, storekeeper here, attended the funeral of his sister on Tuesday. The store was closed in the afternoon.

Miss Verna Houghton was home for the weekend from Aurora.

Miss Betty Westlake of Toronto has been staying with her sister, Mrs. W. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Emmerson and sons, Donald and Kenneth, of Nobleton, spent Sunday with Mr. Emmerson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Emmerson.

Much evidence of activity is seen, with the bare fields this last week, indicating corn cutting. Wagons were busy carrying corn to the silos. Those that are unfortunate in not having silos are having to fill their barn floors, others are putting it in shocks near by.

The seventh bridge, that broke down last week, has been repaired with new materials, making it perfectly safe for all kinds of vehicles going both ways.

PREACHES AT CONN

Rev. W. A. Westcott took the anniversary service at Conn last Sunday.

HEADS NEW DEPARTMENT

A new junior department under the direction of Miss Evelyn Grievens was added to the United church Sunday-school at its rally and promotion services on Sunday afternoon.

YOUNG CONSERVATIVES MEET FOR ROAST

The Young Conservatives will meet at a weiner roast on Cousins' farm on Friday night.

The children taking part in the "Story Hour" each Saturday morning are divided into two age groups and are under the instruction and supervision of Misses Marjorie Andrews and Mae Fry.

The library shelves carry good news for adult readers this week. Fifty volumes of popular fiction, including "mysteries" and "westerns," have been purchased for the adult readers. A visit to the library showed that the new books had been given a warm welcome and were going "like hot-cakes."

DIES AT WINNIPEG

News has been received of the death of Ralph C. Andrews, in Winnipeg, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Andrews of Aurora. Mr. Andrews was in his 54th year. He was a cousin of M. L. Andrews, Wells St., Aurora.

HAZAAR IS SUCCESS

The bazaar and tea held on Saturday by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was very well attended. Slightly over $50 was received. This sum will be used for choir music and to help the decoration fund of the church.

CLEAR $50 FOR CHURCH

Over $50 was cleared at the Presbyterian church bazaar and tea on Saturday. Proceeds will go toward music and decorating the church. The bazaar was officially opened by Dr. Stanley Glen.

BAPTISTS HOLD SPECIAL SERVICE FOR MEN

Frank Inrig of Toronto spoke at the evening service of the Baptist church on Sunday. The service was one especially for men and was supplemented by a men's choir and by an orchestra from Trinity United church, Newmarket, under the leadership of Aubrey Bailey.

KESWICK TELLS OF FINE MISSION WORK

The W. M. S. held their annual thank-offering service on Sunday when the society, under the leadership of the president, Mrs. C. Vaughan, had charge of the morning service. Mrs. Vaughan was assisted by Rev. Mr. Fockler and Mrs. Perry Winch.

The choir, under Ryan Switzer, led in the singing. Miss Margaret Fockler being organist. Two greatly enjoyed special vocal selections were a solo by Mrs. F. Irwin of Toronto, and a duet by Miss Kaye Sedore and Mrs. Ethel Morton. Mrs. Frank Marritt and Mrs. Vail acted as ushers. The guest speaker, Mrs. G. E.

Forbes, dominion president of the W.M.S., was introduced by Mrs. Vaughan. Mrs. Forbes, who is an outstanding personality in the work of the W.M.S., as well as being a splendid speaker, held the interest of the large congregation throughout her marvellous address. Last year Rev. G. E. Forbes and Mrs. Forbes had a fine trip through the Far East and since then Mrs. Forbes has travelled throughout Canada visiting the various mission fields, so that she was well able to carry her listeners along with her, as she went again with them, from one mission to another.

She spoke of the W.M.S. as working with and not for the other Christians, thus making it a world-wide Christian fellowship, 750,000,000 working together with the same purpose and for the same object.

On Sunday next, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be given. A large attendance is hoped for.

Sunday, Oct. 17, is anniversary Sunday at Keswick United Church. Rev. John Manuel, M.A., of Hope United church in Toronto, will be the guest preacher. Choir rehearsal is held each Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The chicken supper under the auspices of the W.A. is being held next Thursday. A concert will follow, which is to consist of a play presented by the Queensville young people and musical selections by Newmarket talent. A very enjoyable evening is promised.

Announcement will be made later about a concert to be held in connection with the anniversary on Oct. 18.

An important Sunday-school executive meeting was held on Monday evening, when the work for the new year was planned, promotions worked out, and other business attended to. It is to be hoped that very shortly the attendance of the school will have returned to normal, as the superintendent, Frank Marritt, and his staff of teachers, are ready and willing to assist all ages, at 10 a.m. each Sunday morning.

Mrs. William Vail entertained the cast of "Three Pegs" on Thursday evening last, in honor of the very popular bride of last Saturday, Mrs. Duncan Houston (nee Velma Morton). The event took the form of a jam and pickle shower, with a few miscellaneous articles added for good measure.

Guests at the United church manse, over the weekend were Mrs. G. E. Forbes, Mr. H. Fockler, Miss Fockler and Mrs. Frank Irwin, all of Toronto.

The young people are surely kept busy these days arranging charivaris and showers for those who are just married and also these who expect to be. Among the farmers, corn cutting is the order of the day, of which there is a bountiful crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston of Chatham spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton.

Mr. Geo. Smalley of Hartman spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Angus King.

Miss Marjorie Glover of Toronto spent Sunday at home.

Miss Effie King was at home with her parents over the weekend.

The community was sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. D. Cole at Roche's Point, mother of Mrs. Jas. Cole of Keswick. The funeral took place on Tuesday of this week.

VIRGINIA FORMER PUBLIC SCHOOL BURNS

Services at the United church will commence next Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

A large number attended the Conservative meeting in Sutton town hall last Saturday evening to hear Hon. James Lyons of Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Lyons was raised in Virginia. The other speakers were the candidate, Lex Mackenzie and Mr. Gardiner. Early Saturday morning fire broke out at the residence of George Wilson, burning the barn, a number of chickens, three pigs, grain, hay and all the implements. The barn was formerly the public school here. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Mrs. Cliff Noble and Mrs. Len Burch of Sutton visited Mrs. Wesley Lyons last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smithurst returned home after spending the past two weeks with relatives near North Bay.

Mr. W. T. Evans had to be taken to Toronto General hospital last week. A speedy recovery is hoped for.

Mr. and Mrs. Haywood and family have returned to their home in Toronto after spending the past three weeks at the Hadden farm.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horner, who were married last Saturday in Newmarket.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Watson and family moved last week to Sharon. Mr. Watson has accepted a position with Mr. Stan Osborne.

Some from here attended the wedding of Miss Lillian Parks and Mr. Donaldson in the Sutton United church last Saturday.

ROCHE'S POINT LODGES ARE TO MARCH SUNDAY

The Island Grove L. O. L. and L. O. B. A. are holding their annual church parade on Sunday at Christ church, Roche's Point, at 3 p.m. A number of other lodges have been invited to attend. Everyone is welcome.

Mr. B. C. Wilkinson of Toronto was calling on old friends here last week.

Billie Kelly is having his house shingled, getting ready for winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Rattray, Mrs. Seaman and her two children, are spending a week at their summer cottage, "Sunset".

Miss Elsie Badland is having holidays and enjoying the beautiful autumn days.

All are very glad to see Miss Muriel Shuman, who is spending a month at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Foster's aunt, Mrs. W. Rae.

Mrs. Walinck was in Toronto on Sunday.

Mrs. McGeachie is in York County hospital and it is hoped that she will soon be able to return home.

Miss Muriel Sutcliffe had lovely weather for her holiday last week.

Mr. T. Service spent Sunday in Toronto.

Keswick United Church manse was the scene of a wedding of much interest on Saturday, when Velma Roselyn Morton, daughter of Reeve W. Ernest Morton and Mrs. Morton, became the bride of Duncan McKinley Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Houston of Chatham, Ont. Rev. C. E. Fock-ler performed the ceremony. The manse was suitably decorated with gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white sheer over coral satin, with white picture hat. She was attended by Miss Margaret Fockler, who wore yellow net over flowered satin, with black velvet jacket and hat. Mr. Douglas Houston, brother of the groom, was best man. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Morton received, wearing a gown of green crepe with brown accessories. Mrs. Houston, mother of the groom, chose a gown of black triple crepe and lace. A dainty lunch was served. The bride, for going away, wore navy blue crepe with red accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Houston, after a short honeymoon, will reside at Willow Beach, Lake Simcoe.

Era printing is high-quality and low-cost.

In his announcement one Sunday morning the vicar regretted that money was not coming in quickly enough—but he was no pessimist.

"We have tried," he said, "to raise the necessary money in the usual manner. We have tried honestly. Now we are going to see what a bazaar can do."

A MAN HONORED IN HIS OWN COUNTRY

Fellow citizens of Gwillimbury Township, who know Earl Rowe best, are enthusiastic admirers of his sterling character and gift for leadership

A Public Servant For 22 Years!

If you had a large scale map of Ontario, you would find Gwillimbury Township marked in the County of Simcoe. But you would have to possess a very large scale map indeed, to locate the town of Newton Robinson.

This little dot of a town is beginning to find itself in print frequently these days. The citizens feel that this is only to be expected because one of their own boys, Earl Rowe, is going to be, they are confident, Premier-Elect of Ontario the night of October 6th.

Some of the old-time proverbs are wearing a little thin these modern days and that well-known one—"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country"—means nothing, simply nothing, to these sturdy citizens of Gwillimbury. They honor Earl Rowe because they know and admire him; the oldsters have been watching him for twenty-two years, ever since he was elected a Township Councillor on his 21st birthday.

Reaches Cabinet Rank

They start them young in public service in these Ontario towns but only one in ten thousand forges ahead to the Provincial Legislature—only one in a hundred thousand keeps going until he reaches Cabinet rank at Ottawa. Such a man is Earl Rowe —and Gwillimbury Township has followed, with pride, every step of his progress.

The most important events in this young man's twenty-two years of public service can be briefly summarized:

- 1915—Elected to Council of Gwillimbury Township.
- 1916—Elected Reeve—re-elected each year for five years.
- 1923—Elected to Ontario Legislature.
- 1925—Elected to Federal Parliament.
- 1930—Re-elected.
- 1935—Promoted to the Cabinet by Honourable R. B. Bennett, then Prime Minister. Re-elected to Federal Parliament.

1936—Unanimously selected as leader of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Party.

A Happy Family

Earl Rowe, whenever his public duties will permit, hurries back to Newton Robinson. For there he finds awaiting him his sturdy red brick house—his wife and three fine children—his 225 acres of farm land—his purebred Yorkshire swine, Durham cattle, registered Clydesdales—his old Township friends.

One cannot hope to understand a public man solely by observing him in the midst of public affairs in Toronto or Ottawa. Follow Earl Rowe back to Newton Robinson—have a meal with him in his big kitchen—walk with him over his fertile acres—see him feeding his swine and his cattle—talk with his aged parents, who live across the road. Then you would realize even more fully than ever before how completely this man possesses that something without which all else is so much chaff—and that something is CHARACTER.

Hereditarily must get some of the credit. The Conservative leader comes from old British stock which settled in Simcoe County many, many years ago. His father, still active at 88 and his mother, eight years younger, were farm folk, and Earl Rowe, when little more than a youngster, bought his farm from his father on credit and paid every cent of his debt from his profits as a dirt farmer.

Virtues of the Soil

On his typical Ontario farm—in his typical rural Ontario residence—Earl Rowe leads the regular routine of a farmer when his Parliamentary work does not call him to the cities. His is a friendly home—made happy by the presence of his wife, and his children, Jean aged 17, Bill aged 13 and Lennox aged 8. Here are enshrined the homely virtues of the soil—those virtues which since earliest days have given strength of character to so many of Canada's greatest public servants.

HON. EARL ROWE

A Warm Personality

This has been written of Earl Rowe by a long-time associate:

"The warmth of his personality is contagious. One cannot come into his presence without feeling his force and sincerity, tempered by a natural kindness and interest in his fellow-men and their problems. With his splendid ideals, backed by long and honourable Parliamentary experience, he is uniquely equipped to make a great contribution to the public life of Ontario."

Newton Robinson isn't seeing much of Earl Rowe these days.

It is a blessing that he is still in the prime of life and health, for he has mapped out a speaking program which will keep him moving back and forth throughout Ontario until the eve of October 6th. His friends are glad of this because they know that every man or woman who sees and hears Earl Rowe, who shakes his hand, who comes under the influence of his warm personality, will say, "This is the type of leader Ontario needs." For that's the kind of man Earl Rowe is—likeable, sincere, earnest—a statesman whose good character and good judgment are written indelibly in the record of his twenty-two years of public service.

TREASURE HUNT

CHAPTER 19

First Blood

Lindy Lou found herself thinking of Lee's jesting speech as she went through the next dance.
Every one in the neighborhood
liked him, there was no doubt of that, not only liked him but trusted and respected him. Someday he would be a real person.
Lindy Lou corrected herself. "He is a real person," she thought. "I wonder if these girls hate me for taking up his attention. Well,
they needn't worry about him;
I'll be going back to Anton soon.
But Lee is nice."
By 11 o'clock dancers began making ready to go home. Ice cream and cake had been consumed, the musicians were preparing to play "Home, Sweet Home," the only round dance
ever danced as such at these parties, and Lindy Lou knew the dance was over. She thought of the dance she had gone to with Anton and she admitted that probably they had a lot better time down here in the South than
New York night clubs and public dance halls could offer in the North.
"Time to leave, Lindy Lou," Lee
said, at her elbow.
And for some reason Lindy
Lou's heart began to beat faster.
There was still an hour and a half left of the evening—an hour and a half she would spend alone with Lee, driving through the soft Southern night. Well, she'd just have to keep talking nonsense and not let them get on any serious
subjects at all. That was the safe way—the kind way.
They came from the lighted
barn into the star-lit night.
Lanterns swung from rigs, the headlights of a few small cars added illumination. All around young people were calling good-nights to each other. Lee stooped and picked Lindy Lou up and lifted her into the buggy. "Oh,
dear," thought Lindy Lou, "he's going to be difficult."
But she wasn't as dismayed as she ought to have been. Something had happened to her—perhaps the music, the gay, carefree atmosphere, something—made Lindy Lou feel a trifle reckless herself as Lee climbed in beside her, chirruped to Traveller and drove him out onto the road.
Traveller broke into a brisk trot.
"He knows he's going home," Lee observed, "and if I let him
he'd bring us to the Beeches in double-quick time. He wants his oats and his stall."
"Are you going to let him?"
Lindy Lou asked.
"I'll have to get you back to Mrs. Jackson's," Lee said noncommittally.
Then he fell silent and to save her soul Lindy Lou could summon none of the nonsense she had meant to talk on the ride home.
Gradually the sound of other rigs
died away and they were alone in the night. Lee leaned over and doused the carriage light that hung on the dashboard. "We don't need it," he observed. "We're not likely to meet any one, and Traveller knows every step of the way."
"It's like being all alone in the world," said Lindy Lou dreamily.
"I wish we were," Lee spoke with violence, then pulled Traveller down to a walk. Presently he said, "I wish we were, but there's all that Yankee life of yours, and this Anton you talk about. I'm going away, Lindy Lou. I'd have gone sooner but I didn't realize how much." Lee stopped and then went on. "I'd have gone
sooner only I wanted to get your word of honor you wouldn't go to Twinoaks alone. I know you won't try it at night any more, but I don't like your being alone there in the daytime even. I'm leaving on a trip to look at stock tomorrow and I've told Mose to go over to your place every day. I don't want you to go into the house
unless he's there, working around,
and I want you to promise me
honor bright that you'll take him
along with you whenever you get out of sight of the house. He won't talk. He already has more than half an idea of what you're looking for, but he's a wise old darker and knows how to hold his tongue."
"I'll promise," said Lindy Lou, feeling that this was the least she could say. "I may not be here
much longer myself."
"Why not?"
"I had a telegram from Anton
this morning asking me to come right back to New York."
"Are you going?"
"I'm not sure. I sort of hate being ordered around like that."
"You've just let me order you around, as you call it," said Lee.
"Oh—that's different."
"I see. Well, then, likely this is our last ride together."
Lindy Lou quoted softly:
I said; Then dearest, since 'tis so;
Since now at length my fate I know;
I claim your leave for one last
ride with me,
And my mistress side by side
I shall be together, breathe and ride.
So, one more day am I defied.
So, 'Who knows but the world
may end tonight?' Lee's voice took up the lines.
"Oh, you know it, too!" Lindy Lou cried. "I saw the 'Barrett's of Wimpole Street' in New York last winter. It was a beautiful play and after I went home I read the Brownings over and over."
"Did Anton take you to that?"
Lee asked.
Lindy Lou almost laughed aloud
at the thought of Anton at anything but a musical comedy. "No,"
she said, "I went by myself to a Saturday matinee."
"Who knows but the world may end tonight," Lee said again
softly. "I wish you could have gone horseback riding with me, Lindy Lou. But I haven't been on a horse since I was a little girl."
"I have a good steady roan

gelding you'd like," Lee said.
"He's as steady as a rocking chair,
but with plenty of speed if you want a gallop."
Lindy Lou sighed. "I see people
riding in Central Park sometimes.
Horses are lovely, aren't they?"
"Horses and dogs and children,"
said Lee.
Silence held them again. The road seemed strange to Lindy Lou and she said after a pause,
"This doesn't look like the way
we came out."
"It isn't," said Lee. "I'm taking you home a long way. We'll go past the Beeches on this road."
"Will we? But why, Lee, if it's longer?"
"Suppose," said Lee, "that since I'm not going to see you again
after tonight I wanted to take you past the Beeches. Maybe I'd like to believe for a few minutes
that you were going there with me. I'd like to dream for a little while that you were going home
with me that we would go up the drive together, and into the house.
That it was our home, Lindy Lou.
Would you mind?"
"No," said Lindy Lou very softly. "I wouldn't mind. I'd—I'd be honored."
Lee put his hand over hers for a moment, then took it away.
"Thank you, Lindy Lou," he said
gravely.
In a few minutes the road took a turn. Traveller quickened his pace and then shook his head and whinnied. "Home," said Lee,
rather forlornly.
Lindy Lou peered out. Two white gateposts loomed vaguely
in the starlight. The tall shapes of trees, which she knew to be the Beeches that gave the place its name, ran in a row back to a dark
mass that must be the house.
Lee's home, Lindy Lou wished
she had dared the conventions
and there, once at least,
from Twinoaks. Traveller turned in the gate and Lee pulled him up short.
"Not tonight, old man," he said,
and with some urging got the horse back on the road to the village. "We'll pass Twinoaks in a minute," he told Lindy Lou.
The road curved again and Lindy Lou leaned forward to try to find Twinoaks in the dark. It set a great deal closer to the road
than the Beeches. Suddenly Lindy Lou clutched Lee's arm.
"Look, Lee, look!" she urged.
Lee leaned forward and drew Traveller to a stop. Unmistakably through the upper windows of the house came a gleam of light, a steady gleam as though some one were burning a lamp. And while they looked a second gleam showed in another room. Lee swore under his breath.
"I'll get them this time," he said, handing the reins to Lindy Lou. "You stay here and if there's any trouble give Traveller
a cut with the whip and beat it for Threeforks. Keep going and bring back help when you get there."
"I'll do nothing of the kind,"
said Lindy Lou, indignantly. "I'm going with you," and before Lee could stop her she had climbed from the buggy and was starting toward the Twinoaks gate.
"Quietly," Lee commanded,
catching up with Lindy Lou and taking her arm. "You keep behind me, we'll surprise them if we can."
He drew Traveller close to the gate and wound the lines around the fence. Then he and Lindy Lou began to go very softly up the walk. They reached the porch and got to the front door. Lee put out his hand to open it and at that moment Traveller gave a loud indignant whinny, pawed the earth in front of him and reared back. Something had frightened him, he wanted his oats and his stall, and he was outraged at this midnight adventure of his master's.
Lee held Lindy Lou's arm
tighter. "Shh—he'll quiet down."
He pushed open the front door
and stepped inside. But Traveller had already given plenty of warning. Over Lee's shoulder Lindy Lou could hear the sound of running feet. The house was dark now. The feet, two pairs of them, it seemed, thundered down
the staircase. Lee leaped in through the hall, calling out:
"Stop, stop." He collided violently with a running figure. Lindy Lou heard the sound of muffled
grunts, blows in the dark, an exclamation of pain, then the tramp
of feet toward the kitchen, the muffled and disappearing sound
of footsteps on the grass outside.
She ran through the hall not at all sure of what she would find.
"Lee, Lee," she called anxiously.
Then she stumbled over a dark head on the floor of the hall and knew by some instinct that it was Lee who lay there. She dropped to her knees and took his head in her arms. "Lee, Lee—please—oh, Lee, wake up!"
He stirred and moaned, and Lindy Lou felt something soft
and warm trickle down her hands.
"I'll get some water," said Lindy Lou, setting her teeth. "I'll go out to the pump and get some water." Somehow she knew she would find the courage to go out
in that black yard and find her way to the pump and bring back
some water for Lee.
She got to her feet and took a step forward, then Lee sat up and spoke her name, "Lindy Lou—Lindy Lou—"
Instantly Lindy Lou was at his side again. "Here I am, Lee.
Where are you hurt?"
Lee laughed shortly. "I've got a nose bleed," he said, "nothing
serious."
"Are you sure?"
"Yep." He tried to struggle to his feet. "Those darn boggars gave me a dirty crack. There were two of them; one caught me
and held me and the other socked
me, first on the nose and then on the chin—knocked me out for a minute."

"But—but you're sure you're not hurt, Lee. I felt blood on my hands," and Lindy Lou began to cry.
"It's my nose, I tell you," Lee said impatiently. "Here! Snap out of it. Let's get out to the pump
before you have hysterics."
"It isn't b-broken, is it?"
Lindy Lou chattered.
Lee took her arm and, half
leaning on her, half dragging her
along, made for the back door.
They got out into the yard, made their way to the pump, and soon
had cold water for their hands and faces. Lee splashed the water vigorously and presently, feeling better, said: "Now we'll go back
in there and see what those two were up to."
"Oh, no, let's go on, Lee. Let them have whatever they were after."
"There's no danger now," said
Lee. "They've gone, bag and baggage. I'll get the lamp from the buggy and we'll go through the house and see what we can find."
Lindy Lou tried again to dissuade him, but he marched on to the buggy, spoke a few soothing words to Traveller, who was pawing the earth uneasily, and started back to the house after lighting the buggy lamp. Its flickering flame threw monstrous
shadows on the walls and Lindy Lou trotted at Lee's heels for all the world like a small puppy. He went directly up the stairs and began a methodical search of all
the upper rooms.
In the one where Lindy Lou
had spent her night of terror they found fresh candle-drippings on the floor.
"Hm," said Lee. "They spent
some time in this room. I wonder
why. They must think there's something here."
But though they looked carefully, they found nothing of interest. Several rooms showed the traces of candle-grease. Lee went up to the attic.
"They read your notice all right," he said, showing Lindy Lou a splash of tallow on the carboard. "I figure it this way.
They knew whoever they are
that you'd be away with me at the dance tonight, and they figured this was an A1 chance to get in here again. I hope they believe you've got a gun and car
shoot."
"I'd be scared to death of one,"
said Lindy Lou.
"I suppose so. I'd give you one
if I thought you'd use any sense
in handling it."
"I don't want it," said Lindy Lou hastily.
They went through all the rooms again and drew a blank.
At the end of their tour they knew only what they had known
before they entered the house,
that intruders were interested in exploring Twinoaks, and that there were two or more of them.
"But where could they stay?"
Lindy Lou asked, as they went back to the buggy and the impatient Traveller.
"That's easy," Lee said. "They can stay at Carlton, about forty miles from here. It's a big enough place for them not to be noticed especially. Then they can drive within two or three miles of Twinoaks, put their car in some undergrowth some place where it isn't apt to be noticed, and come over here on foot. I'm sure they're not local fellows—but I'd give a lot to know what they want and why they're here and who sent them. I'll get my hands

on them someday and make them
sweat."
They drove back to the village
at a fast clip, Lee urging the horse into a hard trot all the way.
In front of Mrs. Jackson's he asked in a low tone, "Are you going to give it up or go on with it, Lindy Lou?"
"Go on with it," said Lindy Lou. "I might have gone back to New York in a day or so if it hadn't been for this. But tonight
only makes me believe more than ever that there's something valuable there, and if there is it's my family's and I'm going to fight for it."
"You believe in fighting for what you want, Lindy Lou?"
"I surely do," said Lindy Lou,
chin up.
Lee considered this. "Well, remember that some day, Lindy Lou. I find I believe in fighting for what I want too."
"Oh—" Lindy Lou gasped and
then wishing to escape quickly
she said, "I'm glad you weren't hurt, Lee. And—and—good-by,
and thank you for all you've done—and—good-by."
But Lee laughed. "I'm not going tomorrow, Lindy Lou. I've changed my mind. And if you want a really reasonable explanation you can tell yourself I'm afraid you might get hurt if I let you there at Twinoaks alone. But if you want the real reason—do you, Lindy Lou—"

"No, no," and Lindy Lou jumped from her place and ran up the walk. And as she ran she thought she heard him chuckle.

A flick of a switch, or the touch of a button summons your personal Genie. You should know him better. His name is Hydro.
It is he who, while you sleep, kept the motor humming on the blower or oil heater, so that you awake to a warm comfortable house. It is he who makes the toast—cooks the meals—bakes the cakes—runs the vacuum cleaner, the washer and the ironer.
And what a friend when you settle down in your favorite chair at night to read or sew under proper light, with your radio to bring the best in entertainment! You retire in security, knowing that should emergency strike, he can be summoned instantly—Lights! Telephone!
What other service can you buy at such low cost, that does so much? And while the price of practically everything we buy has steadily advanced during the past two years, the Hydro has, and is, steadily lowering the cost of electricity to you. In addition, every effort is being made to extend the benefits of Hydro, everywhere in the Province of Ontario.
As a partner in this great enterprise, you should take a keen interest in everything that pertains to Hydro, and its efforts to lower power costs still further.

TO THE ELECTORS OF NORTH YORK:

Dear Friends

It has been my responsibility and privilege to represent you in the Ontario Legislature for the past term and I am again a candidate seeking your endorsement next Wednesday, October 6th.

The three years of the Hepburn administration have been eventful years, and those charged with the responsibility of government have been faced with many momentous and critical problems. We have endeavoured to deal with these problems in a sane businesslike manner, and I am sure you agree with me that we rejoice today because our province has come safely through those troublous and anxious times. We view too with satisfaction our improved financial position, the very substantial reduction in unemployment and the very welcome lessening of the tax burden.

I am grateful to you for the privilege of being a supporter of the Hepburn Government which has so successfully overcome the huge obstacles bequeathed it by the Henry government, its predecessor in office. I am proud to appeal to you as a supporter of the Hepburn government which has met courageously and fearlessly every challenge hurled at it by the ever increasing problems of the times in which we live.

The steadily increasing burden of debt inflicted on you by the previous governments has been stopped. We have definitely established the pay-as-you-go policy in Ontario and as a province we are paying our way. We balanced our budget and had a surplus of $9,000,000.00 which has been passed on to the people in reduced taxation. In addition to all this we have reduced the provincial debt by $33,000,000.00.

Our great Hydro enterprise has been saved for the people of Ontario and thousands of citizens who never before enjoyed the benefits of electrical power have been enabled to become Hydro users. Huge savings amounting to $4,797,761.00 have been enjoyed by the people of Ontario due to reductions in Hydro rates, the direct result of the Hydro policy of the present government.

A great deal has been accomplished for the benefit of the people during the past term, but I am convinced that the Hepburn government has not reached the pinnacle of its achievement, rather is it in its early stages, and I am satisfied that by continuing to follow sound policies and give honest government we shall carry the people of this province on to the great destiny that is their rightful heritage. I ask you for the opportunity to carry on the good work on behalf of the people of Ontario.

I am deeply grateful to you for the confidence which you have shown in me in the past, and I assure you that it will be my sincere aim to merit a continuance of the confidence of the electors of the historic riding of North York.

Sincerely yours,

Morgan Baker
